MEMORIAL ADDRESS

Delivered to G. A. R. in Court House
Last Friday by

REV. GEORGE W. FAUS

An Appeal for More Patriotism and Bravery in all Honorable Walks of Life.

Memorial Day services were held in the Court House last Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Capt. A. I. Lyon presided over the assemblage and music was furnished by a union choir under the direction of Miss L. D. Shuck.

Capt. F. A. Metzger, with a large squad of members of Company L, N. G. P., was present and conveyed the flowers to the several cemeteries of the town and decorated the graves at the conclusion of the services.

Rev. George W. Faus, pastor of the Bedford M. E. Church, was the speaker of the day. His address, which we print in full, was well and favorably received by the audience.

Rev. Faus' Address

At the close of the Civil War, when the brave but weary and maimed and scarred veterans of the Union armies assembled in Washington for that final, memorable grand review, over the front of the nation's capital, on a strip of canvass, were hung out these significant words, "the only national debt we can never pay is that we owe to the victorious Union soldiers." That debt has not yet, and never will be fully paid. But thank God, it has not yet, and never will be repudiated. Though impossible of full payment, yet every year upon the 30th of May a grateful people from city, town and remotest country place, cease for a time their usual activities, and come together that through floral offerings, and tender memories and loving tributes, they may at least make partial payments to those whose debtors they are now, and forever will be.

Five years ago today I stood for the first time in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, in which sleep the bodies of 300 of the noble men whose memories we honor today. That year, for the first time, the War Department had furnished small flags to be placed at the head of each of the soldiers' graves in our national cemeteries. As I stood there, on that beautiful hill-side, and saw the flags waving to the breeze, and a little later saw a company of several hundred school children, to martial music, and in the presence of thousands of spectators, march through those rows of flags, dropping their bouquets beside the flags, and leaving behind them a beautiful carpet of flowers, I thought it is worth something to sleep in this lovely cemetery, and to be so conspicuously honored. But almost instantly this first thought gave place to the worthier second thought, which said, how meagre are even these honors in comparison with the sacrifice and hardship and death which these men suffered for the sake of their country. Verily, no honor that we can give to these fallen heroes of such a worthy cause is too great, nor is any honor commensurate even with what they deserve at our hands.

I recognize the fact that the men who responded to their country's call in the dark days of the early sixties were men of like passions with ourselves. They had their faults and their failures. Not every soldier who died upon the field of battle was a saint, nor is every old soldier who still lives a perfect example of morals or of religion. War is not conducive to morals or to religion, and there were men in the army, as elsewhere, who made sad shipwreck of morals and of religion. I would not at a moment give credence to the thought that the simple fact that a man was a soldier, that he was brave and courageous upon the field of battle, is sufficient substitute for or justification of moral laxity in other directions. The preeminence of one virtue does not atone for lack of other virtues, and cannot be substituted for a well rounded and fully developed character. Nor is any one authorized to say, or to believe that the soldier who dishonors God in his life can make himself right with God by bravely plunging into battle, or to death for his country in some hour of emergency. But still let us give honor where honor belongs.

Notwithstanding the moral laxity of individual soldiers, it is unquestionably true that never before in the history of the world did so large an army maintain so high a standard of morals, and never before in the history of the world did an army of any size make greater sacrifices, or fight more bravely, or die more nobly, or in a worthier cause than did the boys in blue. And, with the exception of the last clause as to the worthiness of their cause, the same may be said of the boys in gray. It is eminently fitting, therefore that in some public and conspicuous way, the memory of these men who thus sacrificed, and thus fought and bled and died should be forever held in honor. For this purpose our Memorial Day has been instituted. As members of the G. A. R. I commend you, not only for the institution of this day, but for your untiring efforts in securing its proper recognition and observance from year to year. I have never known a Grand Army man to be indifferent or unconcerned about the observance of Memorial Day, though I have known of several instances in which but for the vigilance and the activity of the Grand Army men themselves the day would have passed by unobserved. Both beautiful and pathetic is this evidence of loyalty to the memory of your dead comrades. Never in the history of any people has there existed a more beautiful or more praiseworthy custom of keeping alive the memory of those to whose sacrificial suffering and death their country owes its continued existence.

On July 29, 1893, at Neer Winden, Belgium, was fought one of the bloodiest battles in history in which the French under the Duke of Luxembourg defeated the combined armies of the English and the Dutch under William the Third. For many months after this conflict, it is said, the field of carnage was strewn with the ghastly reminders of the struggle. The next summer, as Macaulay tells, the soil, fertilized by 20,000 bodies, broke forth into millions of poppies, a vast sheet of rich scarlet extending for hundreds of acres in every direction. Thus as one has said, "the flowers that are spread over the graves of our heroic dead upon Memorial Day are not only a nation's tribute to the valor and sacrifice of thousands of her sons, but a sweet and holy method of covering the wounds of the past with a mantle of loveliness."

It is with saddened hearts that we who are younger note the thinning out of the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic. As the records show "taps" is sounded for 10,000 old soldiers every year. At this rate, as one has estimated, "in less than two decades the last firing squad will give the last salute to the last survivor of the 2,772,403 soldiers enlisted in the Federal army during the Civil War." Well may you who remain say in the words of the poet:

We are not many, we who stand Beside our comrades graves today; Yet, while we live, with reverent hearts—

We'll honor those who went before; While, as each brother, called, departs, Is re-enlisted one name more.

And when finally, you the members of the Grand Army of the Republic shall all have answered to the roll call from on high, then I trust that the Sons of Veterans will continue to perpetuate the observance of this day. Let the words of WILL CARLTON be impressed upon your hearts:

Cover them over with beautiful flowers, Deck them with garlands, those brothers of ours, Lying so silent by night and by day, Sleeping the years of their manhood away.

Years they had marked for the joys of the brave, Years they must waste in the sloth of the grave.

Give them the meed they have won in the past,

Give them the honors their merits forecast,

Cover them over, yes cover them over,

Parent and husband and brother and lover;

Crown in your hearts those dead heroes of ours,

And cover them with beautiful flowers.

For at least two reasons the observance of Memorial Day should be perpetuated. First, we owe it as a debt of gratitude to the stalwart men who so voluntarily sacrificed the happiness of their firesides for the bloody field of battle that they might preserve intact that union of states, which our Revolutionary fathers bought with their lives, and cemented with their heart's blood. Four hundred thousand, or one out of seven of our Union soldiers,

$3.50 RECIPE FREE, FOR WEAK MEN

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and back, convinced it is the surest and most effective remedy for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together. I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dragging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting, restorative, upbuilding, back-toughening remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. B. Robinson, 3584 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

were either killed in battle or died during the war in hospital or prison pen. To honor the memory of this one-seventh, who fell as the first victims in the War of the Rebellion, the other six-sevenths have instituted and caused to be observed this Memorial Day. Now when these six-sevenths shall also have joined their earlier comrades in the silent cities of the dead, should not we continue to honor their memories in the same way in which they have honored the memories of those who fought and fell by their side. Aye, surely we should. And surely we will, veterans.

Your days may not be long upon the land any more, but be assured that you will not be forgotten by those who live after you. Once a year, at least, tender hands and loving hearts will continue to plant the stars and stripes upon your graves and to strew their grassy mounds with newly cut flowers. We owe this to you as interest, or as partial payments, upon that debt, which, as I said we can never fully pay. We owe this much also to our children, and to yours, and herein is a second reason for the perpetual observance of Memorial Day.

In last week's issue of one of the leading religious periodicals of the country there appeared a full half-page cut of a beautiful cemetery, taken upon Memorial Day, with the crowds of people standing with arms laden with flowers and with heads bowed, reverently joining in the solemn service of the Grand Army of the Republic, preparatory to the decoration of the soldier graves. Underneath the picture were these words: "Simple services like this, by the posts of the Grand Army of the Republic, in city cemeteries and country graveyards, have for a half century served as schools of patriotism for the children of the generations which followed the Great Civil War."

Schools of Patriotism! that is what these Memorial Day services have been. That is what they must continue to be, if the spirit of patriotism is to be kept alive in the minds and hearts of our young people. For you honored veterans, the story of the Civil War with all its terrible conflicts and all its momentous issues, is written in blood. But for us younger people it is written only in ink upon the printed page. If the printed page is to mean anything to us, if it is to impart to us anything of the patriotic spirit of your love and loyalty to country, it needs to be read in the light of these Memorial Days upon which are rehearsed in our ears the heroic tales of your sacrifice and courage and valor, and upon which are vividly portrayed to our minds the scenes of your bloody conflicts and of your disastrous defeats, and more triumphant victories. Truly has it been said that, "a land without memories is a land without life."

IT HAPPENED IN BEDFORD

And Is Happening to Bedford People Every Week.

The case told below is not an uncommon thing. The same occurs frequently and will continue to happen as long as folks have kidneys and overtax the kidneys. Mrs. William Trout, 202 Spring St., Bedford, Pa., says: "It would be almost impossible to fully describe how intensely I suffered from kidney trouble. My back was extremely painful and I often had dizzy spells, during which spots appeared before my eyes. Finally my ankles and limbs became swollen and caused me much alarm. When my son procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills for me, I began using them and they did me more good than all the other medicines I had taken, put together. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for restoring me to good health. It gives me pleasure, to again recommend them."

erty, that every spot in a land that marks the heroic achievement of some great deed is a perennial fountain from which flow influences to strengthen the patriotism of its people."

The Civil War added to the already historic spots in our country such names as Donaldson, Shiloh, Vicksburg, Nashville, Chicamauga, Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Fisher's Hill, Cold Harbor and Appomattox. In the light of these Memorial Days our boys and girls turn the pages of their histories, and these places become to them not mere names in a text book, but the real places at which you men who now wear the Grand Army button, and your comrades who now sleep under the flag-marked graves of our cemeteries, once measured swords with the equally brave men of the Southland who sought the overthrow of our Union, and the perpetuation of that foul blot upon our boasted Christian civilization which made one man not the equal but the slave of another.

In the light of your hotly contested battles and of your courage and valor as displayed upon these fields of struggle, and as rehearsed in our ears, or recalled afresh to our minds upon these Memorial Days these places become to our boys and girls real centres of historic interest, the living fountains from which emanate the streams of influence that arouse and call forth and develop the spirit of true patriotism, or love of country in their minds and hearts. And so for the good of the present, and of future generations of our American youth, as well as for the honor of you veterans, these Memorial Days must not be discontinued or perverted, but diligently perpetuated and, carefully safeguarded, that they may continue to be in the future as they have been in the past, real schools of patriotism.

Were the importance of this day fully appreciated, every right minded citizen would utter indignant and emphatic protest against the arrangement of a ball game or other sports at the same hour as the Memorial Day service, and diligently cooperate with the members of the Grand Army of the Republic in the effort to secure the attendance of the young people upon these services.

And now, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, I wish to congratulate you that you have lived for so many years since the close of the war to enjoy the fruits of your victories. Two vast and unmistakable results were achieved by the Civil War, viz.: the preservation of the Union through the settlement of the question of States rights, and the establishment of the power of the national government over that of the states, and the abolition of human slavery. Both of these were questions of the most far reaching import. The one was governmental, the other was moral. The latter precipitated the former. But both of them became acute, so that the war could not be closed without the settlement of both of them. And thank God they were settled, and settled right, and settled, I trust, forever.

For nearly fifty years you have lived to enjoy the blessings of a strong, centralized, inseparable union of states, each within certain limits self governing, and yet all mutually inter related and mutually bound together by the power of the whole, and all guaranteeing to their peoples, irrespective of race, color, or condition the freedom of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

Long and bitter was the strife of war, but glorious was the consummation thereof. Never before was human government subject to such severe testing, but thank God our government stood the test, and as pure gold tried in the fire, emerged from the smoke of war, more than ever, a government of the people, for the people and by the people, than which there is none better, yea none other so good upon the face of the earth.

I congratulate you that you have lived for so many years to enjoy the blessings of this government which you helped to preserve and especially that you have lived to see the restoration of such friendly relations between the peoples of the North and the South. The Mason and Dixon line has been obliterated, war time barriers have been swept away and war time feuds have been healed. Our railroads now run north and south as well as east and west, and social and commercial intercourse follow the line of the railroads as freely in one direction as in the other. Northern capital is also as welcome in the South as is the Eastern capital in the West. And a Charleston earthquake, or a Galveston flood, quickly touch the sympathy and the philanthropy of the whole North, but no more quickly than do a San Francisco earthquake or a Dayton flood touch the sympathy and the philanthropy of the whole South. "Everywhere," as Dr. Eckman says, "sectional jealousy and distrust are yielding to universal confidence and esteem, enabling the United States to

Hair Slaughter

KILLED BY NEGLIGENCE

Hair must have nourishment or die. If it does not have proper nourishment it will lose its vitality, grow weak, and become an easy prey to the ravages of the vicious and destructive germs of dandruff.

PARISIAN Sage is a hair nourisher; it is the result of sincere study and experiment by one of the world's leading scientists.

It should be used regularly as a hair dressing, because it never fails to prevent dandruff, falling hair, or any scalp disease.

But PARISIAN Sage not only prevents but is a certain cure for dandruff; it stops itching of the scalp instantly; it makes hair grow thick and luxuriant. It is especially in demand by ladies, because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and fluffy. F. W. Jordan, Jr., the druggist, sells it under a positive guarantee to do all that is claimed for it, or money back. 50 cents. Adv.

present the finest spectacle of a free and united people upon which the world has ever gazed."

Lincoln's famous words in his first inaugural, then only prophecy, are now history. "We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies, though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic cords of memory stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over the land will yet swell the chorus of the union when again touched, as they surely will be, by the better angels of our nature."

Surely the better angels are now playing upon the heart strings of the North and of the South, and at Gettysburg this Fourth of July, 1913, when the blue and the gray, the Union and the Confederate soldiers shall come together for the semi-centennial celebration of that bloodiest and most decisive battle, they will meet, not as enemies in deadly combat, but as brothers in hearty hand clasp. Instead of the exchange of shot and shell there will be the exchange of love's warmest greetings and tenderest memories, and instead of the roar of artillery and the smoke of cannon ascending to heaven, there will go up to heaven that angelic chorus, sung again methinks, as at the birth of the great Prince of Peace, by the multitude of the heavenly host, "glory be to God in the highest, on earth peace and good will to men." I hope you veterans may all live to be present for this coming most remarkable Fourth of July celebration, which to my mind is destined to be one of the grandest reunions, and one of the most glorious love-feasts on this side of Heaven.

And now that you who were at one time at war with each other are getting together in peace, what a blessed thing it would be if, with the same persistent courage and valor with which you once fought each other you could now join hands in fighting the common enemies of our great Republic. No one questions your courage upon the field of battle nor can there be any question as to the courage of the foe with which you grappled. The Confederate soldier was a worthy foe. He fought in a wrong cause, but he fought conscientiously, and with a courage no less admirable than that of the Union soldier.

You have perhaps heard of the Confederate and the Yankee soldiers who were contending some time after the war as to who had been whipped. Said the Confederate soldier to the Yankee, "You uns never whipped we uns." "Sure we did," said the Yankee. "Indeed you didn't," said the Confederate. "I'd like to know if we didn't," said the Yankee, "didn't you lay down your arms, and didn't we hold the government?" "Yes," answered the Confederate, "but you uns never whipped we uns."

YOUR KIDNEYS NEED CLEANING

Every Person, Healthy or Unhealthy, Ought to Give the Kidneys a Thorough Cleaning Right Now.

You clean your teeth daily. You wouldn't think of doing otherwise, and yet the teeth are not one-tenth so important to health, strength and a long life as the kidneys.

Do you know that the kidneys are little strainers or fine sieves, through which every drop of blood in the body passes again and again?

And when the kidneys become clogged they are unable to strain the impure matter from the blood, and it stays in the blood and causes disease in various parts of the body. Take rheumatism, for instance, this terrible disease is caused by uric acid in the blood, and uric acid gets into the blood only when the kidneys are clogged and are unable to properly strain the impurities.

Just go to Ed. D. Heckerman today and get a bottle of Thompson's Barosma, the most scientific kidney, liver and bladder regulator the world has ever known, take it regularly for two weeks, and all the impure matter in your kidneys will pass out through the bladder, and your kidneys will be as pure and clean and healthy as any kidneys can be.

Thompson's Barosma is guaranteed by Ed. D. Heckerman to cure all diseases of the kidneys, liver and bladder, or money back. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and will bring the glow of health to the cheeks of the sick in a short time. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. Advertisement.

we just everlastingly wore ourselves out trying to whip you uns."

Now friends with courage and persistence such as that, turned not against each other but joined in battle against the forces of political corruption and unrighteousness, against the organized liquor traffic and the white slave trade, and their progeny, the saloon, the brothel and the gambling den, what could not be accomplished? Oh for a baptism of the same stern patriotism, the same moral courage, the same sense of loyalty to conviction and honor that characterized you men of the North, and your brothers of the South, in your struggle with each other for what each deemed to be the right—oh for such a baptism of patriotism and courage and loyalty to fall upon the young men of our day, the young men of the North and of the South, to make them as strong in standing together to fight the battles of peace as were their fathers in standing one against the other in fighting the battles of war.

You veterans were not the old men fifty years ago that you are today. You were young then. The Civil War was fought by young men; 1,151,848 of the Union soldiers were under 19 years of age; 2,157,708 were under 22 years of age, and only 615,000 were over 22. The probabilities are that a like proportion of the Confederate army were young men. It was the young men of the North and of the South that responded to the challenge of those stirring times, and that fought out the mighty issues of those days.

What a tremendous uprising of the young men of the land that was! And as I look into your faces this morning, veterans, and think of the youthful courage and strength that you put into that fierce struggle, and of how you won out, how the Union was preserved and slavery forever abolished, how right triumphed over the wrong, as I think of this, it makes my nerves tingle and my blood run quick, to think of what a similar uprising of the young men of our day, fighting not with bullets but with ballots might accomplish, and, as I believe will soon accomplish in the overthrow of other evils and in the settlement of other great questions.

How long think you can the corrupt political boss maintain his domination, or how long can big corporations unjustly influence legislation and unjustly oppress the consumer, or how long can the licensed liquor saloon, in the name of our government, carry on its nefarious business, sending more men to the grave, and making more widows and orphans each year than did the Civil War, paralyzing legitimate lines of industry, and imposing upon our people a burden of taxation more grievous to be borne than was our war debt, proving itself in every way a blight upon our Christian civilization, which, as it shall be looked back upon in the years to come, is destined to be considered to no less inhuman and monstrous than was slavery; how long, think you, can these things continue to be when once the young men of our day awake and begin to respond to the challenge of these great issues, and to rise up in their might, and with the same undying courage that characterized their fathers, go forth not to fight each other, but to join hands in a desperate and deathless warfare against these forces of moral and political unrighteousness?

That better day is drawing near. There are many evidences of its approach. You have been the forerunners of its coming. May God bless you and your fallen comrades for what you have done and make the evening time of your life peaceful and its sunset glorious, and God grant that the mantle of the fathers may fall upon the sons, for as the poet sings:

"Freedom's battle once begun, Bequeathed from bleeding sire to son, Is never lost but always won."

A Severe Sickness Leaves The Kidneys Weak

After recovering from a severe spell of sickness some time ago, I was all run down and suffering from poor blood. I would have pains in my back and hips and my kidneys bothered me all the time. I started taking Swamp-Root upon the recommendation of a friend and found it was just what I needed. My blood became all right and after taking a few bottles, I was surprised at the effect it had on my kidneys. They were entirely cured and I have much to be thankful for what your great remedy did for me.

LOCK SPEED

Lock speed is a big element of success in making high scores on the trap or in the field. When you pull the trigger you want it to go with lightning speed. Flying birds and targets will not wait for a hang fire load or a slow lock. Our lock was carefully and scientifically timed at the University of Cornell. Test was made by means of the fly wheel traveling 577.115 inches per second. By means of a special device it was found that the fly wheel traveled .385 inches while hammer was falling. Dividing .385 by 577.115 gives the time it took hammer to fall .000667, or expressed in fractional form 1/1500 of a second. When hammer struck it was traveling 235 inches per second. We figure that this greased lightning speed will increase your score at least 5 per cent. The slower the lock and the slower the load, the farther you have to lead your birds. ## WASHINGTON LETTER

Communication From Our Regular Correspondent.

By Congressman Tavenner.
Washington, June 3.—In the election last fall the people elected members of Congress to revise the tariff on sugar and other necessities, downward, as one step toward the reduction of the ever increasing cost of living.

Powerful lobbies are now in Washington endeavoring to persuade these members of Congress to break their pledges to the people and betray the consumers of the land, to the end that a few men, already rich beyond the dreams of avarice, may add to their swollen fortunes.

It was to place before the public this state of affairs that President Wilson used his now famous statement, in which, referring to these lobbies, he said:

"Washington has seldom seen so numerous, so industrious, or so insidious a lobby. There is every evidence that money without a limit is being spent to sustain this lobby and to create an appearance of a pressure of public opinion antagonistic to some of the chief items of the tariff bill."

In order that the public may know all of the facts about the condition alluded to by President Wilson, I have introduced a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of five members of the House of Representatives to investigate the subject.

This resolution reads as follows: "Whereas, It has been charged by the President of the United States, and there is reason to believe that a powerful and insidious lobby, representing interests hostile to the passage of the pending tariff bill in the form adopted by the House of Representatives, is in existence in Washington; and

Whereas, Newspapers are being filled with paid advertisements calculated to create an artificial public opinion against certain items of the Tariff Bill; and

Whereas, It is charged and there is reason to believe that unlimited funds have been placed at the disposal of this lobby for the purpose of overcoming the interests of the public for the private profit of the interests which they represent; and

Whereas, The public maintains no lobby and is powerless to reply to the paid advertisements of any lobby representing financial interests; and

Whereas, Bills are pending in Congress to regulate and control the operation of lobbies at the National Capitol, and it is advisable to gather any and all facts bearing on the aforesaid conditions and charges or in any way relating thereto, as a basis for remedial purposes; therefore be it

Resolved, That a special committee of five members be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives to sit during the sessions of the House and during the recess of Congress for the purpose of investigating and reporting to Congress the facts in connection with the operation of any lobby or lobbies in Washington; said committee shall inquire into the sources whence any such lobby or lobbies are supplied with funds, and the amount of funds so contributed; and shall also ascertain where and how these funds are expended and for what immediate and ultimate purpose; and shall go into a general inquiry to learn the methods by which any lobby seeks to influence legislation in Congress."

If members of Congress were to allow themselves to be guided by the views of the lobbyists, they would conclude that the people back home were not in good faith when they voted for tariff revision downward. Or, if they were in good faith at the time, that they have since changed their minds, deciding they do not desire the monopolies of the tariff trusts interfered with.

But President Wilson is not being fooled. Nor is the average member of Congress. They know that for every man who beseeches them in Washington to retain the tariff on sugar, there are nine hundred and ninety-nine of their constituents who are not writing letters, but who demand that promises made to them before election be kept after election, and especially the downward revision of the tariff on the vital necessities of life.

President Wilson and the members of Congress also know that every penny of the extra dividends that the lobby interests will make by virtue of legislation granting them special privileges, must come from the pockets of the men, women and children in the districts back home.

It will be recalled that President Taft once faced the same crisis that members of Congress face now. He listened to the voices at his ear in Washington, whom the late Senator Dolliver described as "men who knew exactly what they wanted." President Taft forgot the folks at home who do not write letters, and on the very first election day following they got revenge. The lobbyists in Washington whose counsel he had accepted were powerless to save him from the wrath of the home folks who vote, but who maintain no lobbies in Washington.

The doors of a certain new house had shrunk horribly, as is the way of the modern door made of unseasoned wood and left to shrink in use. The builder would not send the joiner to replace them. So the householder tried the ironclad method and wrote:

THE PASSING OF THE LAUREATE

The death a few days ago of Alfred Austin, Poet Laureate of England, will likely mark the end of a long line of writers who have been chosen for the honor, for while the dailies of two continents were discussing possibilities for the place the news came from Great Britain's King that the office will be abandoned, asserting further that it is as useless today as was the post of King's Jester when it was discontinued years ago.

Far back in the Elizabethan age—that age in which Spenser, Shakespeare and Bacon wrote, Ben Jonson, who, as a dramatic poet, stood second to Shakespeare only, was granted the first patent of Poet Laureate, and since his day many worthy scholars have written official poems on birthday occasions of the Sovereign and on occasions of National victory.

Alfred Austin was appointed to the position after the death of Alfred Tennyson in 1892. He was not the choice of many English scholars and writers but had the preference of the aged Queen, then on the throne. He has fallen far short of measuring up to the standard of many of his predecessors, and since the office is now to be abolished, it is to be regretted that it was not done when the bark of the author of In Memoriam "went out to sea," for had he written but that one poem his name would live on forever and the noble traits of Arthur Hollar would remain an inspiration. But the May Queen, Locksley Hall, The Princess, The Idyls of the King, Epoch Arden and many other selections add to his glory.

THE OPINIONS OF MASTERS

Andrew Carnegie is the most noted iron and steel manufacturer of his generation—of all generations. William E. Cory grew up in the business, finally reaching the position of President of the United States Steel Corporation, the greatest industrial concern in America, if not in the whole world.

These men are qualified to give expert testimony on tariff laws, particularly with reference to iron and steel.

Mr. Carnegie arrived in London last week and gave to reporters the following statement:

"I am glad the tariff is being revised. I told President McKinley on his way to Buffalo just before his assassination that there was no need to protest American industries which had already been sufficiently developed. Our country is doing such an enormous export business that protection is certainly not necessary now."

About the same time that Mr. Carnegie's statement appeared in the London papers Mr. Corey returned to New York and said to representatives of the papers of that city:

"I have read the Underwood bill, and it is O. K. It will reduce the cost of living. The talk about its closing factories is bluff."

This is the testimony of men who know. They have risen to the top rung of the industrial ladder at home and they have traveled the world over and studied industrial conditions in all progressive countries.

In times past lawmakers have hesitated to reduce or remove tariff schedules, fearing threatened shut-downs and wage cuts. Now they are bound by party platform pledges to revise the tariff downward, and these pledges have the unmistakable stamp of approval of the American people. There is but one course for Congress to take.

Heller-Nicodemus

On Wednesday, June 4, 1913, at 12 o'clock noon the home of Frank Nicodemus near Schellsburg was the scene of a beautiful wedding when his daughter, Miss Leah C., became the bride of John Heller of Waterville, O. The procession marched into the double parlors to the strains of Neck's "Before the Wedding," rendered by Miss Doris Culp, pianist, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Comley in the presence of a large number of invited guests. The bride was attired in white crepe-de-chene, beautifully trimmed.

After the ceremony was over the guests were ushered into the dining room where the table fairly groaned under the weight of the toothsome concoctions for which the Nicodemus women are noted.

The happy couple received many beautiful and useful presents along with the good wishes of those who were present. Mr. Heller is a farmer in the famous Buckeye State. Miss Nicodemus, or Mrs. Heller, is a graduated nurse from the Lucas County Hospital of Toledo, O., having completed her course in February, 1912, and has been following this profession in that state ever since. She will remain at home for probably a few months and then they will make their future home on their farm near Waterville, O.

We join with their many friends in wishing them a happy and prosperous future.

Paint?

There are two good reasons for painting often-enough or even too-often. One, to look prosperous; two, to be so.

Nothing does one more credit or gives one more credit than paint, supplemented of course by what goes with it, and paint costs nothing.

True, the first cost is $5 or $6 a gallon put-on; but it saves more than that in the property; saves it from slow going-down—not always slow—it drops with a jump when water gets in on wood and iron.

Dry wood and iron cost nothing, kept dry by paint.

Better paint when it needs it. Paint never goes-down in the sense of being more profitable next year.

Although it rained in the morning, a large crowd turned out. The P. O. S. of A. and I. O. O. F. formed in front of their halls and, headed by the Hitetown Band, marched to the M. P. Church. The Sunday School superintendent, teachers and scholars marched through; then all marched to the E. Church, where the Lutheran Sunday School and officers fell in and all counter-marched to the I. O. O. F. Hall, where all listened to addresses by attorney William Huster, a former Centreville boy, but now of Cumberland; Revs. Pierpont and Krause, and recitations by Mabel Whip, Mabel Rose, Jessie Zembower and others. The exercises were begun by singing the opening ode of order, music by the band and other patriotic pieces. The order held a festival Friday afternoon and night and Saturday night.

Rentz Bros. Famous Shows Coming

The representatives of the Rentz Bros. Shows have completed all arrangements for the appearance of this well known European enterprise in this town on Wednesday, June 11. For more than a decade the Great Rentz Shows have maintained a prominent place in the front rank of amusements throughout the German Empire and because of its unusual characteristics as a circus, its essential quality of "different from all other shows," made the name a household word in the Fatherland. As it was conceded to be "its advent into America last spring," its duly heralded and the performance was appreciated to such an extent that the management decided to increase its size two fold for the tour of 1913.

They have introduced some startling novelties which include the "Fighting Lion," the "Air Ship Pony," the "Monkey Balloon" and the "Marvelous Coulter," the "Giant Strong Man." The patrons of tented amusements will be justified in expecting an unusually meritorious performance, and they will see surprising exhibitions of trained animals and skillful performers such as is seldom offered by circus enterprises. The Rentz Bros. Shows are cosmopolitan in character and if any show is capable of pleasing all classes of people then this one is.

Mrs. H. B. Williams, who was operated on at Philadelphia a few weeks ago, has returned home and is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mrs. Grant Manges is visiting friends at Windber.

In spite of the cloudy morning and the rain in the afternoon, on Memorial Day we had, as usual, a very large crowd here to take part in the services. The parade formed in front of the I. O. O. F. Hall, headed by the Wolfburg Band, and followed by the different orders, the few members of the G. A. R. bringing up the rear; all marched to the Presbyterian Church, followed by a large crowd, which filled the church, to listen to the address delivered by J. Anson Wright of Bedford, which was appreciated and enjoyed by everybody present, as was also the special music prepared by members of the different choirs of the town.

The crowd then proceeded to the cemetery, where the program was completed, although marred considerably by the rain.

Score One for Dogs

Imagine, if you can, two small horses running in tandem, on immediately back of the other, a dute little dog on the back of each; imagine again that the dog on the front horse is turning a somersault backward to light on the back of the rear horse, and that that dog is doing that remarkable act the little fellow on the back horse makes a direct leap to the leading horse, thus the two dogs pass each other in mid-air, going from one horse to the other. This may be even difficult to imagine, but those who attend the performance of the Rentz Bros. Shows in this town on Wednesday, June 11, will not have to use their imagination regarding the suggestion made, for they will see the act in reality. Remarkable as is the work of these dogs under training of Mr. Roy Thompson, perhaps the most pleasing feature of their novel part of the exhibition is the spectacle of four white dogs, all of a size, riding on the bare back of one little pony. It seems to be the policy of the management not to reature very strongly any of their program, being content to announce that every act is a feature and well worth seeing.

Lesson X.—Second Quarter, For June 8, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xlv, 1-15. Memory Verses, 4, 5—Golden Text, Ps. cxxxiii, 1—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We can scarcely imagine the feelings of Joseph as he heard Judah recall his father's anguish at the time of his own supposed untimely death and his reference to his father as an old man whose gray hairs were being brought down with sorrow to the grave and then to Benjamin, the child of his old age, a little one whose brother was dead and he alone left of his mother, and his father loveth him (xlv, 20, 28, 29).

No doubt his heart had been for many days to reveal himself to them for his father's sake, and now that Benjamin was before him and the other ten the longing to let his aged father know that he was still alive, to behold his face and show him his prosperity and share it with him, must have been almost intolerable. He could not any longer refrain himself, caused every one to go out that he might be alone with his brethren, and he wept aloud so that the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard, and when he could command his feelings he said: "I am Joseph. Doth my father yet live? I am Joseph, your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt" (verses 3, 4). Did men ever hear such wonderful tidings, and can we wonder that they were terrified and could not answer him? Now they understood how he could arrange them at table in the order of their ages and could see a significance in his dealings with them, and they would certainly remember his dreams, for which they hated him. But then he had been kind to them withal, had restored their money twice, and they had dined with him. So when he said, "Come near to me, I pray you," they came near, and his words must have melted their hearts: "Be not grieved nor angry with yourselves. * * * God did send me before you to preserve life * * * and to save your lives by a great deliverance. So now it was not you that sent me hither, but God" (verses 5, 7, 8). Oh, what wonderful grace, forgiveness and comfort, and what words for all believers to lay to heart, "Not you, but God!"

Perhaps he did not see it at the time, but now in his exaltation he could look back and see it. We sing that we will bless the hand that guided and the heart that planned when throned where glory dwelleth in Immanuel's land. But some one says, Let us have faith in God and do it now and put in practice our belief in Rom. viii, 28. See the longing to make glad his poor father's heart, whom he had not seen for twenty-two years and who was now for the time without a son at all and wondering if he would ever see his loved Benjamin again. "Haste ye and go up to my father and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph" (verses 9-13). They were to tell Jacob of his son's glory as ruler over all Egypt and that they were all to come to Egypt and be nourished by him there during the remaining five years of famine. They were to hasten back to Egypt and hasten to bring down their father (verses 9, 13).

When he had unburdened his heart and they no doubt continued to be amazed beyond measure he then kissed and wept upon each one, beginning with Benjamin (verses 14, 15). The news spread that Joseph's brethren had come. Pharaoh heard and was well pleased and heartily desired the coming of them all to Egypt and that wagons should be sent to bring Jacob and all the families, wives and little ones. "Soon they were on their way, loaded with good things, for the journey to Canaan and return. In due time Jacob welcomed home his eleven sons, and Benjamin was safely restored to him, and there must have been a great burden lifted from the father's heart.

But what is this that they are telling him, "Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt" (xxv, 1). He cannot believe it. His heart grows faint at the tidings. But they untidily confirm it with many an incident, and Judah tells history, and Benjamin says, "Yes, father, it is all true, and his arms have been about my neck, and he kissed us all, and he sent these wagons; see, father, wagons from Egypt." When Jacob saw the wagons he was convinced and said: "Joseph, my son, is yet alive. I will go and see him before I die." The wagons were the convincing evidence, and if there were more such convincing evidences in our lives that Jesus lives there might be some more believers. Note in verse 20 that because the good of the land of Egypt was before them they were not to regard their Canaan stuff, and may the glory of the kingdom of God be that way. He gave a change of raiment to each brother, but to Benjamin five changes and 800 pieces of silver (verse 22). When they dined with him Benjamin's portion was five times as much as theirs (xliii, 34). The number five signifies abundance, for the word "abundantly" is first found in the fifth day in Gen. 1. Look up other verses and see if I am right. How important for us his exhortation, "See that ye fall not out by the way" (verse 24). Consider Luke xiv, 15, 31, 28; Zech. xii, 10; Acts ix, 5; II, 23; xvi, 19; Eph. ii, 13; I Cor. iv, 4; Phil. iii, 14; I John, iv, 8. Suggested by A. R. H.

Pardonable Curiosity
"I see the cake quite plainly," said the guest at the restaurant table d'hôte, as the waiter brought him strawberry shortcake for dessert, "but there's one thing I'd like to know."

"Yes, sir?" replied the waiter in a tone of respectful inquiry. "What is that?"

"How on earth did you gain all your popularity?" inquired the new Senator.

"Why, you see, it was this way," replied the older statesman. "When men asked me for my candid opinion about themselves I gave them my candid opinion, and when they asked me for my candid opinion about their friends, I gave them my pickled opinion. Popularity followed as a matter of course."

RILEY'S POEMS ARE MADE REAL

J. R. Barkley, Crayon Artist, is Apt Illustrator.

ALSO EXPERT CLAY MODELER

Has Often Caused Merriment by Sketching the Face of Some Unsuspecting Party in the Audience.

There will be at least one entertainment at the coming Chautauqua which even a deaf and dumb man can enjoy, and that will be the hour allotted to James R. Barkley, the crayon artist and clay modeler. There is something about pictures that fascinates the ordinary man or woman, especially when the evolution of the picture can be watched from the first stroke of the crayon, clear through to the completion. All of Mr. Barkley's work is done right before the eyes of the audience, and his quaint and humorous remarks while the work is progressing, help to keep the audience in a happy frame of mind. Sometimes a picture calls for a song, and as some favorite melody is being sung, the artist rapidly illustrates the lines.

Perhaps the most popular phase of Mr. Barkley's work, is the illustrating of the heart touching verses of James Whitcomb Riley. Taking his crayon in hand he will begin to recite "When the Frost is in the Pumpkin, and the Fodder's in the Shock" at the same time reproducing a country house with the field of shocked corn and pumpkins, true to the words of the poem in every detail. Following this may be a picture that will cause the audience to roar with laughter, and then a picture that will leave scarcely a dry eye. For many years, Mr. Barkley has been entertaining thousands in nearly every state.

JAMES R. BARKLEY.

and he has come close to the hearts of the common people. He knows their needs, their lives, and his programs leave a lasting impression for good.

The clay modeling is a feature of the program that causes many to wonder at the realistic appearance of the faces and figures sculptured in the clay.

CIRCUIT CHAUTAUQUAS

About three times as many circuit Chautauquas will be held in 1913 as were held in 1912. The number of independent or "old line" Chautauquas grows less each year, and will soon be found only in ancient history. The wonderful growth of the "Circuit" plan demonstrates the superiority of modern business methods, along with community co-operation.

The highest type of business organization is to be found in the management of these "systems" or corporations, coupled with years of experience, as over against the slipshod methods, and often muleish stupidity of individual members of the committees, appointed promiscuously or by chance finding a place in the management of the Independent Chautauqua. The Independent, from the conditions surrounding its birth was "born to die," while the circuits are laying down foundations which seem to insure, if not a perpetual youth, at least a ripe old age.

RIGHT CHAUTAUQUA IDEA

The "Lincoln" Chautauquas are distinctive among "Circuit" assemblies. They have a purpose and that purpose is kept in the lime-light. They are co-operative and profit-sharing. The $20,000 authorized capital stock is owned and controlled by the local Chautauqua assemblies, and the board of directors are elected from and represent the Chautauqua towns themselves. Can you imagine a more practical or common-sense arrangement for carrying out the Chautauqua idea?

Thousands More Civil Service Appointments

The establishment of the Parcel Post has greatly increased the work at the Postal Department. Thousands of additional Civil Service appointments will be necessary.

The opportunities for positions in the Civil Service were never better. Civil Service positions are desirable because the hours for work are not too long, salaries are good and certain and promotions are frequent. The greater number of appointments will be made in the Post-Office Service, paying from $600 to $1,700 and more per year; the R. F. D. Service, paying $1,100 per annum to standard routes; and the Railway Mail Service, paying from $900 to $1,800 per year.

Any American over 18 years of age who passes the U. S. Civil Service examination is eligible to one of these positions. The U. S. Civil Service Commission instructs you how to meet the requirements of the Civil Service examination in any branch of the Government work.

Mark and mail the coupon below and we will send you a booklet giving names of U. S. students who are now holding Civil Service positions at good pay. We will also tell you how you, too, can enter this profitable field of employment.

Bedford to Have a Real Circus

The Rentz Bros. Shows, a snappy little Railway Circus, will give two performances in Bedford on Wednesday, June 11. This attraction is a moral one and carries many educational features, never before presented under a circus tent. All the acts that one usually sees with a circus are carried, but they are presented in such a way that one may see and hear all that is going on.

There are the smartest Arabian ponies, performing dogs, acrobats, aerilists, gymnasts, jugglers, wire-walkers and clowns and last but not least, "BABE," the smallest trained elephant in the world, who has proven a strong drawing power in every town in which she has appeared. There will be two performances given here, one in the afternoon and one in the evening and there will be a number of free attractions given on the show grounds before each performance. Don't forget the date.

HUMAN SIDE OF GETTYSBURG

North American Supplement Does Not Attempt Historian's Work.

The semicentennial of the battle of Gettysburg undoubtedly warrants the special supplement of eight pages which is to be devoted to it by the Sunday North American on June 29. The presentation of the subject on this extensive scale does not in any sense trespass upon the task of the historian of the past or of the future. The writers of the articles presented have endeavored to tell only the human side of the great conflict and to tell that so as to interest the school-boy of today as well as the veteran of '63. One article by General David McMurtrie Gregg is the only one dealing with a strictly military phase of the battle.

One article that will undoubtedly attract attention because of its unique character is the story of the great fight as told by one of the guides on the battlefield.

Good pictures, good printing and a genuine human note throughout the section make it a notable newspaper enterprise, and early orders will be necessary to insure delivery of the paper to those who desire it.
